LACK OF PRECAUTIONS LED TO DEATH OF TWO AT KNOB MINE

Such in Effect is Finding of Jury in D'Armitt and Borsoder Inquest

BLAME IS PLAINLY PLACED

Asserted That Brave Superintendent Led Men Beyond Danger Zone—Man Who Barely Escaped Among Important Witnesses.

Foolhardiness in venturing into the danger zone of the Knob mine near West Brownsville without first taking proper precautions by having that part timbered led to the death of Superintendent Eugene B. D'Armitt and Joseph Borsoder last Wednesday, according to the finding of the coroner's jury which sat in the inquest conducted by Deputy Coroner Lawrence B. Frye at the Frye undertaking rooms here Monday evening. The verdict was one which set the blame plainly on the dead superintendent. It was as follows:

"We, the jury find that Eugene B. D'Armitt and Joseph Borsoder came to their death at the Knob mine of the Pittsburg Coal company on April 21, 1915 from shock as a result of being crushed by a fall of rock. We further find that the accident was due to the rash act of Superintendent Eugene B. D'Armitt in personally going beyond the danger signal to take up the track without first making the place secure by timbering."

John S. Crawford was the foreman of the jury and jurymen were: William Evans, John Caleffie, James Hill, William Stigers and A. B. Slaughter.

Mine Inspector Charles P. Byrne of the Twenty-first Bituminous district, did much of the questioning of witnesses and brought out that Superintendent D'Armitt and Barsoder had gone into a part of the mine that was not properly timbered for the purpose of taking up tracks. One fall had occurred. They were caught under a secondary fall of rock that barely missed others in entry 26.

The three most important witnesses heard were James Sneddon, the mine foreman, Robert Charlton, the assistant mine foreman and D. Kenny, a road man at the mine. Kenny and a man who was with him barely escaped death in the fall that caught Superintendent D'Armitt and Borsoder. Shouting a warning they leaped when they saw the fall coming and got just beyond the edge, saving their lives.

Other witnesses heard in addition to the three were Alexander Huse, a shot firer, E. Gallagher, a helper, James Keefe, a helper, Joseph Flint, a driver, Louis Crocker, a road man, and John McNeil a road man.

The Pittsburg Coal company was represented at the inquest by a claim agent, whose name was not learned. None of the higher officials were present.

TWO VETERANS ANSWER CALL

Major Wilson and Major Happer, Who Fought in Civil War, Die

BOTH PROMIMENT IN COUNTY

Two well known Civil war veterans died within the last day at Washington. Major Selden L. Wilson, aged 73 died Monday and Major Andrew Gardner Happer, aged 76 died this morning at 12:30 o'clock.

Major Wilson served in the Civil war as a member of the Anderson cavalry, and was promoted to a lieutenancy. Always interested in military affairs Major Wilson was captain of old Company H. Tenth regiment, N. G. P. and later became major of the regiment, thus winning the title by which he was best known. He was a member of the Wm. F. Templeton Post No. 120 G. A. R. at Washington. His funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Major Happer died as a result of eye trouble. When the war broke out in 1860, Happer was a student at Washington college. He enlisted in Company K. First Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry. In 1865 he was transferred with the rank of first lieutenant of the Eleventh Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He participated in some of the most important battles of the war, and was once captured and was confined at Libby prison six months. Major Happer was one chosen to accompany the funeral cortege across Pennsylvania when President Lincoln's funeral was held.

Both Major Wilson and Major Happer were prominent in their time in affairs of the county. Major Wilson was at one time a leader in county politics and served as recorder of deeds during a term. Major Happer served as assessor of internal revenue and for 25 years as a manager of the Morganza Training school. Major Happer was connected with various business enterprises.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY BELIEVED TO HAVE RESULTED IN SEVERE ATTACK ON ITALIAN

Respected Young Man Assaulted by Stranger With Dangerous Knife While Returning From Band Practice at Monongahela

What is believed to have been a case of mistaken identity in the attempt of an unknown Italian to end the life of another resulted Monday night in putting Louis Nagy a popularly known young Italian of Axelton in the Memorial hospital at Monongahela with serious face and neck wounds. Nagy bore the brunt of a furious attack while returning home from band practice with the Italian band at Catsburg. His assailant, escaped, leaving little clue.

Nagy was walking with James Bova and Charles and Mike Plesher after band practice, when from a dark spot near the Catsburg tipple, the unknown leaped forth with a wicked looking knife in his hand.

He plunged the knife at Nagy's breast, but the young man warded off what would have been a death blow. The left side of his neck and face was slashed and the knife sank deep near his left ear. The stranger fled.

Nagy's three companions picked him up and hastened with him to the office of Dr. F. H. Underwood, where 12 stitches were taken to close the gaping wound. Weakened by loss of blood and the shock of his experience, Nagy was taken to the hospital. He will live though seriously wounded.

Nagy is an Italian who is numbered among the best known and most respected of the Monongahela vicinity. He is not known to have any enemies and himself cannot account for the unexpected and unwarranted assault save through mistaken identity.

The police of Monongahela are looking for an Italian of medium build and dark complexion who wears a black hat and dark clothing, as the man guilty of the attack.

BIG CANONSBURG PLANT TO DOUBLE CAPACITY

Number of Mills Being Increased From 10 to 22 by Standard Tinplate Company—1,200 More Men to Be Given Work.

Plans now being worked out by the Standard Tinplate company at Canonsburg will result in the building of extensive additions and enlargments to the big plant of the company there. It is the intention to more than double the plant's capacity which will mean an increase in the number of employes from 1,000 to more than 2,000 men.

The plant at present consists of 10 mills and this number will be increased to 22 mills.

The payroll of the company at the present time is more than $65,000 per week. With the increased capacity the amount to be paid out weekly will be about $140,000.

The Standard Tinplate company is an adjunct of the Continental Canning company which makes use of the entire output of the Canonsburg plant. For the past year or more the Canonsburg manufactory has been unable to meet the entire demands of the Continental Canning company and for that reason the increase is being made.

The contracts for the plant enlargement are being rushed as rapidly as possible.

TIME FOR ADVERTISING.

There is general agreement among business and financial authorities that business is making a decided improvement. Last year's good crops have flooded the west with money and the favorable crop outlook for 1915 spreads still more hope and cheer. The United States is making money on an enormous amount of very profitable war orders. And the fact that the war seems unlikely to continue for many months bids fair to lift the embargo that has prevailed in cotton and other lines of trade, says the McKeesport News.

That being the case, many forced economies in the daily life of the people must be coming to an end. The effect of any such depression as this country has experienced since last August is very wide spread, even as regards communities and individuals not hit by the harmful condition. A man's business or income may not have been harmed a particle. Yet if he reads about poor business in other localities, he tends to lose something of confidence and to curtail his own expenses. Economy and self-denial and thrift are all contagious, spreading from one person and one community to others, just as extravagance spreads.

The practical result of all this is that a great many people are going to find themselves much in need of goods of all kinds, clothing, home furnishings, business necessities. It is probable that the average household buys food a little less liberally during a period of dull business. But now collections are better and everyone feels less called on for cramping economies.

There is every reason to expect a good retail business for the rest of the current season. People will buy more freely, feeling that in view of past economies they can afford to do so.

As trade expands, every merchant can afford to let his advertising expand. If he does not, some one else will get the business. The time has gone by when the public will hunt out the man who doesn't aggressively seek trade.

RAW FOODS.

This is the season when the amateur gardener's eyes are delighted by the rows of summer vegetables that are poking their green leaves above the warm earth. The season for raw foods has already arrived.

Lettuce, water-cress, radishes, parsley, cucumbers, leeks, berries and many other toothsome growing things burden the market stalls and tempt the house-wife after the winter menu of canned vegetables, says the state health commissioner.

A certain percent of raw foods is an excellent stimulant to the appetite and a wholesome change at this season of the year. Care should be exercised however, that they are properly cleansed before being eaten. Often the laborers in the truck gardens and those who handle the truck before reaching the consumer are careless in the use of dangerous fertilizers for vegetables for market who are also careless to a degree that is almost criminal.

All vegetables to be eaten raw and berries, even at the risk of slightly injuring their flavor, should be thoroughly washed before being eaten.

Gardens should be fertilized with care. No night soil should be used on truck gardens from which the produce may be served uncooked. Water-cress must not be grown in polluted streams. Watercress from polluted streams often produced epidemics of typhoid fever. Bananas should be thoroughly washed as soon as they come into the hands of the consumer, so that the dirt taken on during transportation will not be conveyed to other edibles.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The civic Solomons of Brooklyn or such as are incorporated in the Tenement House committee, have crystalized their wisdom and the sum of their experience in seven commandments for those who live in cities. That those commandments are in effect a prismatic representation of the Second Great Commandment, taken both literally and figuratively, commends them to every one's earnest attention. If thou lovest thy neighbor as thyself, then these few behests, quoted by the Kansas City Star, will be easily obeyed:

Though shalt honor thy neighborhood and keep it clean.

Remember thy cleaning day, and keep it wholly.

Thou shalt take care of the rubbish-heap; else thy neighbor will bear witness against thee.

Thou shalt keep in order thy alley, thy back yard, thy hall, and thy stairway.

Thou shalt not let the wicked fly breed.

Thou shalt not kill thy neighbor by ignoring fire menaces or by poisoning the air with rubbish and garbage.

Thou shalt not keep thy window closed day and night.

The following poem is one of appealing sentiment to town boosters and is among those "worth reprinting:"

Nothing's Wrong Here.

What's the matter with this town?
Nothing, sir, it's you!
Are you helping it along?
Lots of things to do!
Finding fault with this and that
Doesn't cure the ill;
Taking off your coat and hat
Is the way to fill the bill!

What's the matter with this town,
Anyway? you ask;
If there's anything that's wrong.
Fighting it's your task!
Knocking, maybe, has its place,
But it is up to you—
With a bright and smiling face—
To do some boosting too!

What's the matter with this town?
Matter is that men
Find it easier knocking down
Than helping up again;
Lots of things to do:
Nothing the matter with the town,
The matter is with you.

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

The Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, contains an article on "The Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis, Based on the Assumption That the Dietetic Cause of the Disease is Lime Starvation," by Dr. John F. Russell, who says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation. * * * Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance * * * but if the salts are not in organic combination it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food."

Years of widespread use confirm us in the belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and chronic throat and bronchial troubles is due in large measure to its content of lime, so combined with other ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this has had much to do with the results obtained in many cases of these affections, which appear to have yielded to Eckman's Alterative.

As it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Your druggist will order it for you or you can send direct.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS SPENT ON STOMACH

Pennsylvania Man Gets Quick Remedy for His Long Suffering Stomach.

Henry F. Curry of the Hotel Bartlett at Cambridge Springs, Pa., suffered most desperately from ailments of the stomach and digestive tract for years. He spent a fortune in the pursuit of health.

At last he happened to discover Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. He found relief quickly. Mr. Curry wrote:

"I have spent thousands of dollars for doctors and medicine and hardly got temporary relief, and before I took your medicine I was about discouraged. But after taking your medicine I got great relief. My mental and physical suffering had been so bad that I had to resort to morphine, and even with that I did not get much relief. Your remedy helped me wonderfully. I have a good appetite, sleep well, and have gained weight."

When a talk about the German invasion of England was going on, a militiaman, stationed in Carrickfergus, was heard to remark that immediately the enemy landed in England he would certainly bolt, taking a good stock of provisions, and hide in a convenient cave he knew of.

The colonel, hearing of his unpatriotic resolve, called him out next day on parade, and lectured him severely on his cowardice.

"You're a disgrace to the regiment and the Service-at-large," he cried. "Fancy you threatening to run away; but I'd be after you in quick time, my man, never fear."

"Sure, an' you'd be welcome, your honor; but, bring yer own praties an' things, won't yer, colonel?"—London Tit-Bits.

—Tin Rapidly Disappearing.

With regard to the future use of tin, it may be said that we are dealing with the one metal whose known ore reserves are entirely inadequate to even the present demands and that unless some new source of supply is developed very soon we may expect to find that tin is a very scarce metal indeed.

Of the present sources of tin ore supply, says the Engineering Magazine, most are either stationary or receding in output, Bolivia being the only one which gives promise of permanency and of future growth. Under these conditions the question of substitute metals becomes of importance, and aluminum, zinc and steel all have some possibility in this direction in one way or another.

Mountain Climbing.

Melchior Andregg, the famous Swiss guide, who has died, at the age of eighty-six could remember the time when mountaineering as a popular pastime had not been invented. Such was evidently the case in 1838, the year when Murray's first Handbook to Switzerland was issued. In the section of this work devoted to Mont Blanc the author contemptuously points out that "it is a somewhat remarkable fact that a large proportion of those who have made the ascent of this mountain have been persons of unsound mind."

ADJOURNMENT NOW IN DOUBT

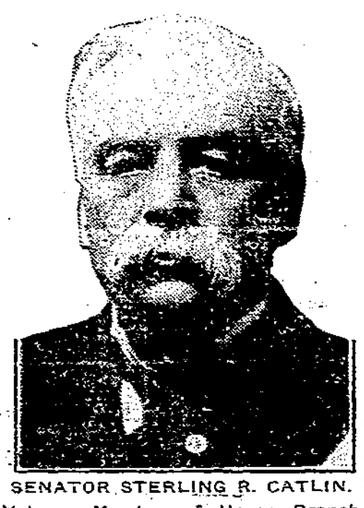
Legislature May Not End Work Before June 1.

TWO BIG BILLS STILL PENDING

Child Labor and Workmen's Compensation Measures Yet to Be Acted Upon by Senate—Full Crew Repealer Now In Senate—Plan For Branch Capitol.

Harrisburg, April 27.—It is a good guess that the Pennsylvania legislature does not adjourn on the day fixed by resolution of the house, May 6. Many say that it will be sometime around the beginning of June before the lawmakers decide to fold their tents and leave the capitol. There is plenty to do yet, and from all indications weeks will be required to dispose of the business at hand.

With local option out of the way, interest centers on child labor and workmen's compensation. Both of these bills have passed the house and are now in the senate. They will go through the upper branch in amended form. The fight on the child labor bill in the senate is in regard to the number of hours a week a child should be permitted to work. Advocates of drastic child labor laws have fixed the hours at fifty-one, while the manufacturers and parents of the children want fifty-four and will do everything possible to block any child legislation at this session unless this request is granted.



SENATOR STERLING R. CATLIN.
Veteran Member of Upper Branch Who Is Always Active.

Governor Brumbaugh stands with the fifty-one hour people. He believes that no child between fourteen and sixteen should work more than that length of time during a week and he is insisting that the Cox bill be put through the senate in the same shape as it passed the house. Manufacturers insist that if the houre are made fifty-one they will be compelled to close their industries to any children under sixteen, and this action would work a great hardship upon thousands of poor people residing in the vicinity of manufacturing establishments.

There is another section in the bill prohibiting any boy under twelve from selling newspapers. This is such a nonsensical provision that the senate is sure to speedily eliminate it. Newspaper publishers are a unit in the opinion that a prohibition on the age of newsboys is unjust.

It is thought that the workmen's compensation and employers' liability bills will not precipitate a fight in the senate comparable with that on child labor. There are but a few points to be straightened out, and when this is done the committee on corporations will start the bills through the upper branch.

An important step in the compensation movement was taken last week when the senate passed the Catlin bill to bring the anthracite miners under the proposed new laws. In the absence of this act the compensation bills would not affect the hard coal miners, who at the present time are not supposed to work for coal companies, but for mine foremen certificated by the state. The operators would be free from any liability for accidents due to negligence on the ground that the negligence was caused by state agents and not by the companies. The bill will now pass the house without serious trouble.

Though there are reports that certain members of the senate who were expected to champion the repeal of the full crew bill have decided to take an opposite stand, it is believed the repealer will go through the upper branch. The house vote greatly surprised members of the railroaders' union, who predicted the overwhelming defeat of the Baldwin bill.

The Vickerman amendment to the act creating the public service commission is making good progress and may go to the governor for his approval or disapproval. This amendment takes away from the commission all jurisdiction over public utilities and their relations to cities, boroughs and townships and would confine the commissioners to consideration of cases involving steam railroads and telegraph and telephone lines operating wholly within the state.

Senator Richard V. Farley, of Philadelphia, has introduced in the senate a resolution that would make Philadelphia the branch capital of the state. It is Farley's plan to have the state construct an administration building, probably along the parkway, to house the many state departments that have offices in Philadelphia.

The proposed state administration building would contain offices for the governor, who frequently has business in Philadelphia, and would house the state highway department, the bureau of labor and industry, the state insurance department, the department of health, the state moving picture censor, the live stock board and other state offices now located in Philadelphia.

The Farley resolution calls for the appointment of a commission to investigate the cost of such a structure. At present the state is paying rent for offices now located in Philadelphia, and the sponsors of the plan say that the construction of an administration building in Philadelphia would save the state money in the end.

OPTION DEFEAT NOT SURPRISING

Result in House Was Expected From Start.

GOVERNOR TO KEEP UP FIGHT

Not Discouraged and Already Making Plans For Two Years Hence—He Was Handicapped by Character of Certain Men Who Supported Issue Through Selfish Motives.

Harrisburg, April 27.—Men who believe in local option declare that the result last week in the house, when the Williams bill met defeat by a vote of 75 for and 125 against, is not going to discourage those who want such a law on the Pennsylvania statute books. Already plans are being made for the 1917 battle, and it is expected to be one of the most strenuous in the long history of Pennsylvania politics.

The wets, though jubilant over the victory against their enemy, nevertheless feel that they must be vigilant and already they have outlined a program to fight the dry element in every legislative district of the state.

REP. CHARLES J. RONEY.
This Philadelphia Member is the Best Orator In the Legislature.

Governor Brumbaugh does not feel discouraged at the outcome of the uphill fight he made for local option. In the beginning he counted on securing at least 103 votes, and that the number fell far short of this is naturally disappointing to him. But it will not have the effect of causing him to relax his efforts for the struggle two years hence.

As already stated in these columns, local option never had a chance of passing. A majority of the members of the house were elected to represent the wet interests, and to imagine for a moment that a minority could win over a majority was to imagine something that does not often happen and could not happen under the circumstances existing this year.

To make the situation even more difficult for the governor's plans, a number of scheming politicians, who for years have been trying to destroy the Republican party, decided to lead the local option procession in order that in the event of the bill passing they would gain some of the glory that rightfully belonged to the governor. The caliber of these men and their reputation as political tricksters tended to keep out of the local option camp many who might otherwise have gone into it.

Hundreds of genuine Republicans had no desire to join hands with men who last fall characterized Governor Brumbaugh as insincere, who distributed slanderous literature concerning the entire Republican ticket and who took the lead for local option merely for selfish and scheming purposes. If these fellows had kept out of the fight the governor in all probability would have made a better showing.

There will be no increase in the state constabulary. By a vote of 61 to 165 the Baldwin bill to add 116 men to the present force, with an increase in salary for the members, met defeat in the house. Preceding the taking of the vote there was an acrimonious debate, in which the constabulary was praised and denounced. Representative Maurer, the only Socialist in the house, led the battle against the bill.

Representative Baldwin defended the constabulary, told of the fine work it is doing and said that every year it is unable to handle one-tenth of the requests made upon it. He said that Major Groome is not a Philadelphia liquor dealer, as alleged by Representative Maurer, but merely connected with a wine selling firm, one of the oldest in the Quaker City.

Representative Phillips, of Clearfield, said that the constabulary found the lost daughter of one of his constituents, who everybody believed to be in the hands of white slavers. Following a pathetic recital of the bringing home of this wandering girl by a trooper and the overjoyed family thanking him from the bottom of their hearts, Sullivan, of Allegheny, startled the house by jumping up and asking the members to vote against "this damnable state constabulary." Then Rooney, of Philadelphia, blew out all the proponents of the bill and the bill itself by characterizing the constabulary as nothing more than something patterned after "the Irish police that for untold centuries have been crushing the patriots of the little green isle."

JUDGMENT ON LEGAL POINTS

Recent Decisions Handed Down That Are of More or Less General Importance.

The right of a person injured in a swinging door to recover for the negligence of another customer against the proprietor of a store has just been passed on by the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts in Smith vs. Johnson. The court held that where plaintiff, in entering defendants' store through a swinging door, put out her hand to guard her face from the door, which was swinging in her direction, and it was crushed between the door and the jamb, defendants were not liable, such door being in good condition and similar to those generally used, and there being no such crowd as would require the keeping of a doorman.

A similar ruling has been made in New York state by the appellate division, second department, by a majority vote, in Partington vs. Abraham where the prevailing opinion said:

"The proof showed that similar doors, with springs of the same or greater strength, are in use at numerous like establishments in the borough of Manhattan. There does not appear to be anything about their construction or operation to make them dangerous to the customers of a department store, provided ordinary and reasonable care is exercised in their use. That it is possible to use them so as to injure others is demonstrated by this very accident; but carelessness in the use of any form of door may inflict injury upon one who happens to be sufficiently near it. No doubt the plaintiff has been the victim of a lamentable accident, but it is attributable, as it seems to me, not to any fault of the defendants, but rather to the hasty carelessness of a third person over whose movements and conduct they had no control."

INTRODUCE A NOVEL SPORT

Society Girls Sit in Chairs and Cast Their Hooks for Goldfish in Hotel Fountain.

A cane, a piece of thread and a bent pin, together with bread crumbs for bait, form the basis of a novel indoor sport introduced at an exclusive Pasadena hotel by two fun-loving society girls. The goldfish in the fountain which graces the big lobby of the hotel form the prey, although to date there have been no serious casualties among the finny beauties.

To sit comfortably in a big Morris chair in the lobby of a palatial hotel, and at the same time enjoy all the delights dear to the followers of Izaak Walton is quite a novelty, declare the girls, who make a great sport of luring the fish to near-capture.

"Goldfish are fun to angle for," says Miss Marion Landers, who, with Miss Edna Walsh, introduced the odd sport. "We don't care to eat them, though, so any we catch we put back. It's great fun, don't you think?"

It certainly is, declare the prominent eastern guests, who were interested spectators of the novel fishing.

The Old and the New.

Inventions have a remarkable knack of repeating themselves. Among the more interesting patents for 1914 is a specification for a wheelless motor car, propulsion being by means of skids, which are alternately lowered and raised. In the early days of locomotive history many inventors did not believe that sufficient adhesion was to be attained by a smooth wheel operating on a smooth rail, and weird and wonderful were the devices for overcoming this supposed defect. One ingenious engineer went so far as to design a contrivance in which jointed metal bars worked up and down on the rails after the fashion of a horse's legs, and there seems to be a certain affinity between this device and the motor car referred to above.

Wonders of the X-Ray.

The discovery of the X-ray by Professor Roentgen may be fairly considered one of the most wonderful achievements of the nineteenth century. It is today, as it was found by him in 1895, the same mysterious, unseen, but positive force, a species of electrical energy without a domicile and needing no conductor, a form of light passing through closed doors, invisible itself, and yet lighting up certain substances with a halo of glory and radically changing and decomposing others. Rivaling the sun in actinic power, and writing its autograph with an unseen hand, it is truly called the X-, or unknown ray.

Russians' Coppers of Soup.

Prince Oldenburg, head of the Russian Red Cross service, has perfected an invention based on the thermos flask principle that has saved many lives on the battlefield. Each field hospital has two huge coppers of a joint capacity of 200 gallons, and a gargantuan vessel on the thermos principle, all mounted on wheels. The soup prepared in the coppers fills the thermos vessel, and then the coppers prepare another supply—and hot nourishment can be provided for 1,500 men the moment they are brought in from the field.

For Lovers of Birds.

Start at once to make some bird houses. Try scattering a few about the premises and enjoy the neighbors that will move into them. One of the most pleasing songsters that may easily be attracted to a home near the house, is the wren. A very small opening should be made in its house, to prevent other birds from using it.

DAUGHTER FINDS BODY OF FATHER HANGING TO LIMB

Grewsome Discovery Made at McDonald—Worry and Despondency Believed to be the Cause.

The body of Louis Germaine, aged 68 years a workingman at the Primrose mine near McDonald of the Pittsburg Coal company, was found by his daughter shortly after noon Monday hanging from a limb of a tree on the hill back of the daughter's home. Life had been extinct about half an hour.

Little is known of the events which led up to the last act of the man's life. According to the story of persons in the neighborhood, Germaine and his wife went to Primrose some years ago and not long after coming to that place his wife died. Since that time he had made his home with his daughter.

About three weeks ago he was injured while at work in the mine. Since that time he had not been at work. At noon Monday the daughter went out to call him to his dinner but could not find her father. She then began to hunt for him and not long afterward made the grewsome find in the woods on the hill not far from her house. It is believed that worry over his physical condition was the cause of the deed.
